And What Have You

By BOB CRAIG

Ran across the following bit of satire in the Breckenridge American that seems worth repeating. The article was written by Don McElreath of Service, Inc. in Casper, Wyo. and first appeared as a letter to the editor in the Western Oil Reporter.

Because of its length it is being set in small type, but hope that you will find it worth your time to read.

THE BUFFALO CRISIS

Many years ago there was a western type town called Wildcat, Wyoming. This was a very prosperous town and everyone had all they needed. A tribe of Indians lived on the outskirts of town who were buffalo hunters and they kept the town supplied with meat.

The town's people always had plenty of meat to eat although they did not have much in storage. The town also got meat from other buffalo hunters who brought in buffalo from far away lands.

This made it very hard on the local tribe, as they only received $2 per buffalo and with the imported meat there was not much demand for local hunts. The town's people did not care too much for the Indians anyway and didn't want them coming into their town.

The town also had a Government agency, that was supposed to help the townspeople and the Indians. But it seemed the agency was always against the Indians. Although some leaders in the agency were good to the Indians, like "Buffalo Hansen," others like "Trader Jackson" sought to destroy the local tribe.

Then it happened! The far-away buffalo hunters got mad at the town and would not deliver any more buffalo meat to them. Panic hit the town as there was very little meat in storage and everyone would have to be rationed. The local tribe was at a loss, as they had no way to meet this sudden demand. The Indians also were rationed and had to wait in long lines and sometimes, after hours of waiting, find out they had run out of meat.

Most town people were not informed on what went on in this busy town and blamed the local Indian tribe for the shortage. (Some were so stupid they said the local tribe had purposely made unsuccessful hunts and had stamped the buffalo over cliffs to create the shortage.)

The Agency then came to the Indians and said, "We must have more Buffalo Per Day." (now known as BPD) "We must make our town independent, so we will not have to rely on far-away buffalo hunters anymore."

The Indians agreed. (As this is what they had tried to do all along.) But they had many problems. The bows and arrows were old and had been stacked in a teepee for years. They would have to be repaired, if arrowheads and twine could be obtained. New ones were ordered, but the bow and arrow makers were running 2 years in back orders. Inexperienced braves would have to be recruited as many of the old braves had left when the buffalo hunts were slow and wages were so low—never to return. The buffalo also were not as plentiful as before and the hunters would have to travel longer distances, into deeper canyons, at more expense. The bows and arrows would cost more money and they would have to pay higher wages to the braves. The buffalo would have to be raised to $10 each to cover the expense of the hunt. Some of the town's people cried, "Excessive Profits." Others said let's use canned food—but cans were not to be invented for another 25 years. The buffalo hunts were carried on at a fast pace. The Indians worked very hard.

Many moon before the crisis, the Agency had set it up so that the Tribe had to give them part of their buffalo earnings each year. But the tribe returned from many, many hunts without even a smell of a buffalo. The agency would then return a small amount of their earnings so they could invest it in other buffalo hunts. This was called a "Depletion Allowance." Most of this had already been taken away from the tribe. This was another reason the tribe had slowed investments in the hunts.

Although the Indians worked hard, the townspeople still complained. They said the hunters horses messed up their land and smelled up the air, even though most of them had never been to the hunting grounds. They complained that the wagons that hauled the buffalo meat and the hunting gear should not be allowed on the main road, even though the tribe paid the town for road permits and road use tax.

Some of the Indians started hunting from the water in canoes. This was a great expense to the tribe but they felt this might increase the supply of buffalo. The town people cried that the Indians would run the rivers. Although the tribe took every precaution, one buffalo did fall into the

New Migrant Student Program Launched Here for 4-Year Olds

New equipment continues to arrive for the newly-initiated four-year-old migrant student program. Six students are enrolled in the class which offers the children of migratory agricultural workers an opportunity to become acquainted with educational processes.

Just this week a large low formica table with child size brightly colored molded plastic chairs were added to the furnishings of the large room in the northwest corner of the elementary building.

A theme is used to present the subject matter. Last week the children studied colors and body parts. This week's theme is animals. A live rabbit and a large number of toy animals are included in the presentation of the theme.

Mrs. Randall (Roseann) Graham of Stamford, a recent graduate of Abilene Christian College, is the supervising teacher. Mrs. Eddie (Mary Jo) Marentes is assisting teacher.

The children enrolled are Tonya Corlee, Amy Marentes, Felix Ledesma, Jessie Gonzales, Diana Lozano and Noe Arce.

Children must be four years of age by Sept. 1, 1974.

A migratory child is a child who has moved with his family from one school district to another during the past year in order that a family member might secure employment in agriculture or in related food processing activities.

The two major emphases of the four-year-old program are a bilingual approach to the development of English as a second language and a bicultural approach whereby students will be able to operate successfully in two cultures.

Early classes are taught in Spanish and English and is incorporated into the

Faculty-Senior Basketball Game Tuesday

The annual Faculty-Senior basketball match up is scheduled for Tuesday evening in the local gymnasium, according to Coach David Bonds.

Efforts were being made here Wednesday for a double header with a girls game starting at 7 p.m. with the boys game to follow. This would be the first year for a girls game to be played in this annual event to benefit the high school athletic fund.

program as the children progress. Toward the end of the term, Mrs. Graham said that more English would be used.

The program, which was initiated with the assistance of Region XIV Education Service Center, was launched on the belief of educators that the early years of life are profoundly important in the development and improvement of a child's intellectual potential. Also, many migrant children lack certain basic experiences which would allow them to receive maximum benefit from traditional classroom settings.

The curriculum used for the program begins at a low order of difficulty and proceeds systematically to higher levels.

Among the goals are to strengthen the child's concept of himself as a worthwhile human being, develop sensory/perceptual skills and language skills and develop thinking and reasoning.

The students are in class from 8:30 to 2:30. Included in their schedule are rest periods, snacks and recess periods.

Each teacher takes three students at a time and teaches two lessons, giving each child a total of four lessons daily. They also spend time in small groups or individually in the learning centers at various times.

vance into the Bi-District playoffs with a second half win.

With one game left on their schedule, the Pipers could post a 5-1 record in the second round of play with a victory over Colorado City Friday night. They were 3-3 in the first round. Anson, while owning a share of the first round, dropped games to Hamlin, Coahoma and Colorado City in the second round of play.

The game here Friday evening was the season final for the local girls as the district girls race was completed one week earlier than the boys. The girls were 5-1 in both rounds with losses only to Coahoma in each half.

After dropping behind the Coahoma Bulldogs, 28-12, in the first quarter, the Pipers staged a second quarter rally to pull within three points at half time, 38-35. But they failed to keep their rally alive in the second half and dropped behind five points at the end of the third quarter and were out-scored by four points in the final period to lose, 67-58.

Johnny Jones was high for the Pipers with 20 points, he was followed by William Brown with 16, Delbert Thompson with 9, Gerald Rodgers with 8 and Tracy Rowland with 5. Jody Bennett was high for Coahoma with 21.

After trailing 36-10 at half-time, the Hamlin girls put on a strong rally early in the third period, outscoring Coahoma, 24-16, but could not over come the big Coahoma lead and lost, 69-50.

Kathy Hooper was high for the local girls with 26 points, she was followed by Kimi Mehaffey with 13, Elberta Cork with 10 and Elizabeth Hooper with 1. Miss Hulme was high for Coahoma with 31.

EAT YOURSELF SLIM

Over-refined foods lack needed nutrients

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY,
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Much has been written and spoken about the over-refined American foods, but little has been done to change eating habits to reduce consumption of these foods.

It may be that eventually the ever-increasing incidence of intestinal tract problems will alert doctors and their patients to the dangers of over-refinement of foods in our diets.

Many people suffer from the very disturbing and painful problem of diverticulitis — inflamed pockets in the intestines.

A diet lacking adequate fiber, over a long period of time, will not supply the needed roughage to keep the digestive tract healthy.

There are no real nutritional guidelines, at this time, to define the amount of fiber that is needed to maintain health, however, it is a well documented fact that societies that consume quite large amounts of fibrous foods have almost no problems with constipation, diverticulitis, appendicitis or cancer of the colon.

As our food supply becomes more and more refined, more fats and sugars are added, resulting in an increase in calories.

The loss of fiber in the diet also produces a diluting of certain highly important trace elements and the loss of many needed vitamins. The more processed our foods become the more sodium we get. We also tend to get less potassium with over-refined foods.

The loss of silicone, nickel, chromium, selenium and zinc also occurs. These trace minerals are needed in only tiny amounts, but nonetheless are required for an adequate diet.

It is not surprising that we are seeing more and more people with the combined problems of overweight and diverticulitis. The number of these sufferers is increasing at an alarming rate.

A huge excess of unnecessary calories are added to the diet by the intake of sugar, fat and white flour. They do have some of the needed vitamins and minerals, but in their highly refined state most of these valuable nutrients are lost.

As much as 34 per cent of the calories in the average diet are contributed by sugar and fat. In some cases 18 per cent of the calories is supplied by white flour.

Such items as pies, cakes, doughnuts and sweet rolls make up a large part of many people's diets and these people often suffer from obesity and intestinal tract problems.

When diverticulae become infected or inflamed it is called diverticulitis, a painful condition.

Traditionally, the dietary treatment for this problem has been the omission of skins, strings and seeds of fruits and vegetables. These tend to get caught in the diverticulae and cause trouble. By including more rough-water. The Indian who had shot the buffalo cleaned up the mess by himself and paid all the expenses while the townspeople stood on the bank and complained. The Indian was required to take his canoe and leave town. All the buffalo that were taken from water hunting has been forgotten, but the "Buffalo Splash Story" is still talked about today.

The Agency formed a committee and sent them to the Indian village. They told the tribe that this group would make their hunting safer. They would put saddles on the horses, tied the braves to them, put safety tips over arrow heads and hard-toed moccasins to wear. (All at the expense of the Indian tribe.)

The Indians protested that this would greatly hamper the buffalo hunt and the tribe had always had safety regulations. Why they even had their own safety council and safety braves that checked every hunting party. But the Indian's argument fell on deaf ears and the new group stayed in command. The group was formed by townspeople consisting of storekeepers, bartenders, blacksmiths, etc., none of whom had ever been near a buffalo hunt. The new group was called "Safety & Health for Indian Tribes." (Acronym deleted—editor.)

Although the hunts became more and more expensive, it looked as if the tribe might find enough buffalo for everyone to eat and maybe they could store some for the long cold winters. Then an evil spirit came upon the tribe. It was a leader from the Agency, good old "Trader Jackson." He said the depletion allowance should be taken away from the tribe and the price should be rolled back to $2 per buffalo. The Agency and the townspeople agreed and it was done.

The beaten Indian tribe put away their bows and arrows and returned to the reservation. Never to hunt buffalo again. The winter was bad and all the townspeople starved to death. The town of Wildcat perished.

NEINDA PHILOSOPHER—

J. A. Claims San Francisco Trustees Trying to Bring On Real Depression

Editor's note: The Neinda Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Route One seems shocked over a piece of news he saw on television.

Dear editor:

I was watching the evening news on TV the other night, well, they call it the evening news but actually it's just part of the evening news; it's the news that happened close to where the network had a camera that day, or news that didn't play out before a camera crew could get there; anyway the part of the news that interested me that night was a report that the San Francisco school board had decided to discontinue all junior high and senior high school sports.

That's right, football, basketball, baseball, track, marbles—everything would be discontinued to save money.

Now what the San Francisco school board does is none of my business, I've got my hands full out here on this Johnson grass farm, but, like the economic advisors who convinced President Ford three months ago that the way to solve the country's problems was to save and stop spending, only to reverse themselves and say no, the way to do it is for everybody to spend more and create jobs. I wonder if those school trustees were looking far enough down the road?

I mean, without junior high football, how can you develop any players for a senior high team? Without a senior high team, how can you have any college teams? And without any college teams, where would professional teams get any players? The same goes for baseball, basketball, tennis, golf, swimming, etc.

Without thinking, the San Francisco school board is about to undermine the very foundations of society.

I have a notion that by the time this gets into print the howl of protest beginning with the cheer leaders in San Francisco, not to mention the coaches (how many coaches would be satisfied with a teacher's salary?) and spreading like wildfire across the nation will have convinced the board of trustees they didn't realize the magnitude of their decision.

You throw thousands of coaches out of work, ruin the business of helmet makers, shoulder pad people, uniform makers, etc., not to mention destroying half of television's revenue in the fall and winter, and you've just given the recession one more shove toward a depression.

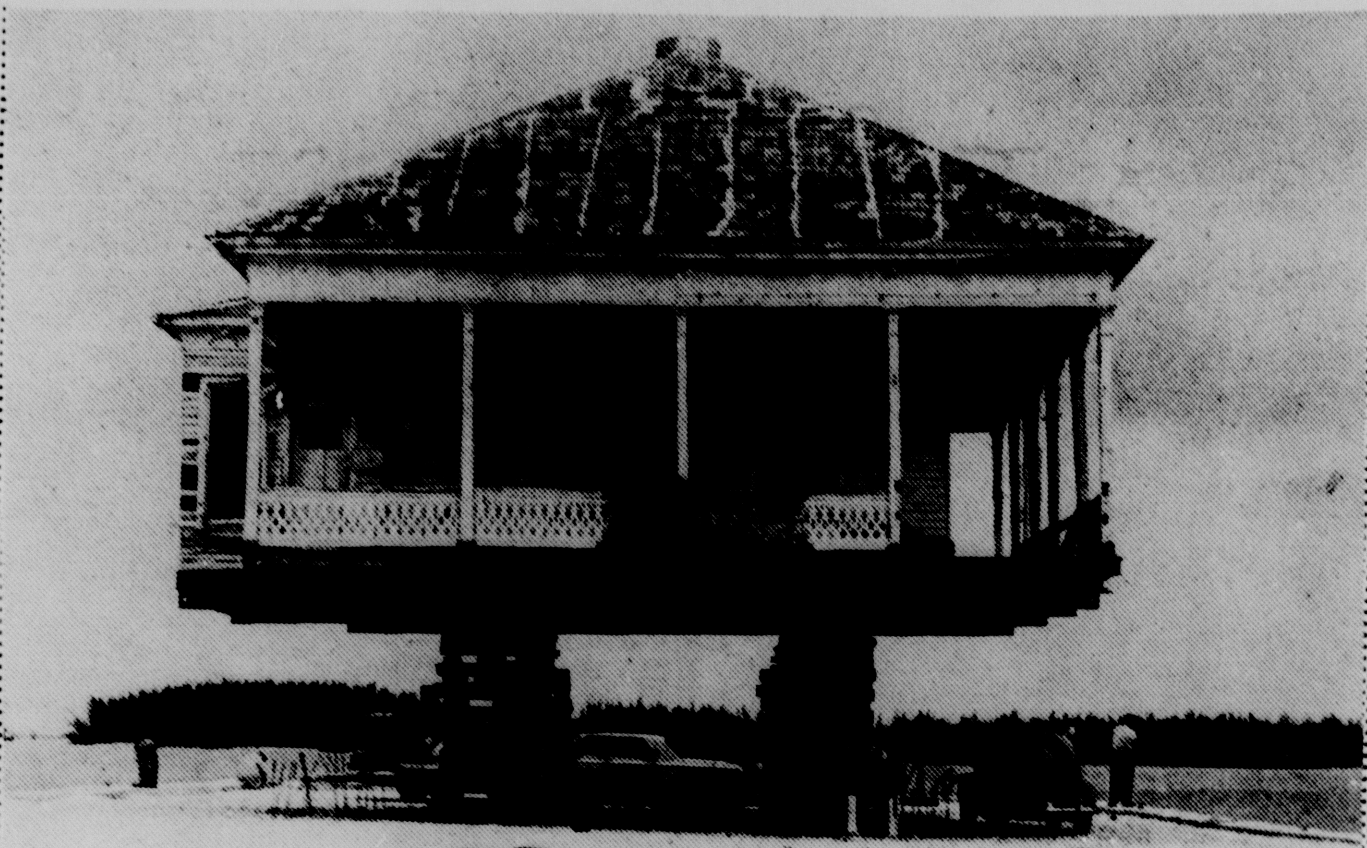

Some people say Congress isn't responsive enough to the will of the people but you don't see Congress pulling stunt like that. It hasn't got time. Too busy investigating things.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

HOUSEMOVING

This house was moved to make way for a new super freeway. A city in progress creates many changes. The owners, no doubt, hated to change their location, and dreaded pulling up life-long roots. St. Paul would help in situations like these when he said, "For I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." Phillipians 4:11. The Lord will help us in new situations and new surroundings. He has promised to be with us in all things.

After getting settled, it is good to find a church home with people of like faith. No new neighborhood seems lonely if you can be with people who have the love of God in their hearts.

"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together," (Hebrews 10:25a) is a wise saying. We invite you to attend the church in your community this week.

Insurance Industry Urges Larger Deductibles to Offset High Rates

Austin—Insurance companies throughout the state today warned property owners that due to skyrocketing inflation almost all citizens are underinsured.

F. Darby Hammond, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service here, pointed out, for example, that the cost of housing construction has jumped about 70 percent since 1967.

A home that cost $20,000 in 1967 now sells for $34,000. "Homeowners who have not increased their insurance even in the past year are underinsured and would face drastic losses if an accident occurs," he said.

The insurance industry is proposing a solution to the problem which will not cost homeowners much increase in premiums, if any. "Homeowners should increase the amount of their insurance to actual value at today's prices," Hammond said, "and they can do this without costing them a lot of money. Some might even see a reduction in premiums. They should consider raising the amount of the deductible on their insurance policies," he said.

Many homeowners carry $50 or $100 deductible on their homeowner insurance. In other words, the homeowner agrees to pay the first $50 or $100 of a loss. This makes sense, Hammond explained, because insurance is meant to protect against large losses which would wreck a budget or even wipe someone out financially. A $50 or $100 repair bill is not likely to do this, he added.

On the other hand, almost one-third of all homeowner losses are under $100. Insurance companies must spend the same amount of money investigating, appraising, and doing paper work to pay small claims as they do to pay large ones. Therefore, Hammond explains, if the homeowner pays for small losses and lets the insurance companies cover large ones, it cuts down on company expenses of handling small claims, thus saving the homeowner money. He can buy a $250 or $500 deductible policy, for instance, much cheaper. Increasing the homeowners deductible from $100 to $250, for example, saves the homeowner about 10 percent on premiums. Raising the deductible from $100 to $500 would save up to 20 percent.

"With this kind of saving," Hammond pointed out, "the homeowner can increase his insurance to cover the actual value of his home, furnishings, and personal belongings."

"To put it another way," he said, "the homeowner can buy more insurance for less money and that's something today when everything we buy seems to go up every day."

To illustrate his point, Hammond produced some figures that may startle property owners. For instance, maintenance and repairs for houses jumped 74 percent from 1967 to 1974.

Deadline for FFA Citrus Fruit Nears

Friday, Feb. 21, is the deadline for ordering citrus fruit from the Hamlin Future Farmers of America Chapter.

Orders for oranges and grapefruit will be delivered during the week of Mar. 5. The fruit is packed 40 pounds to each box for $6.50. The one-half boxes are $3.50. The fruit is sold as oranges, grapefruit, or mixed half and half.

All FFA members are selling the fruit. Anyone who has not been contacted and would like to order some fruit should call chapter advisors Milburn Wink or Gary Finley.

This includes increases of 92 percent for repainting living and dining rooms, 100 percent for reshingling roofs, 72 percent for residing houses, and 85 percent for domestic services.

"This idea of increasing insurance coverage and deductible amounts so that you have more insurance for less money also applies to automobiles," Hammond said. "We need insurance when we have heavy losses, but if we are willing to pay for minor repairs with a higher deductible we can buy more insurance for the same money." A major accident could cost a car owner a lot of money.

For instance, auto repairs and maintenance have risen 57 percent since 1967. Medical care items and hospital services have soared 102 percent for semi-private rooms and doctor's fees have increased 52 percent. The cost of funeral services have jumped 35 percent.

"Inflation means our homes and cars are worth more today than ever before," Hammond said, "and we need to protect that value with increased insurance. We can do it with little or no increase in premiums if we will increase the deductible."

Reddy's helpful tips for your Electric Range

BAKING: Plan your oven meals. A complete meal can be cooked in the oven as economically as one food item. Get foods into the oven as soon as it's preheated - or don't preheat at all.

BOILING: When cooking vegetables, use a small amount of water. It takes less time to bring them to a boil. As soon as water reaches the boiling point, you can cut the setting back. When boiling water for coffee or tea, heat only as much as you need. Remember, too, that water comes to a boil quicker in a covered pan.

COOK AND FREEZE: Prepare double recipes for meals like spaghetti, soups, and stews that take a long time to cook. Then freeze half for future use.

SHOPLIFTING MEANS...

YOU'RE BEING ROBBED!

Everyone pays for shoplifting. Even the shoplifter.

More than three billion dollars worth of merchandise is shoplifted each year from retail stores throughout the nation. To combat this staggering loss, millions of dollars are being spent by merchants for security guards, store detectives and electronic security systems. Police and court costs increase. To make up for the total shoplifting loss and security expense, we all pay higher prices. Increased court and police costs come out of our taxes.

The shoplifter is really robbing himself.

When a shoplifter makes a legitimate purchase, he pays the higher prices along with the rest of us. And his taxes help to support the higher police and court costs, too. But the shoplifter steals from himself in much more important ways. Advanced security systems mean more arrests and that means increased chances that the shoplifter will be caught. Here's where the shoplifter is really robbing from himself. He can go to jail. He may pay a large fine and court costs. His conviction for the crime of shoplifting may become a permanent criminal record for the rest of his life. Since the average shoplifter is 14 to 18 years old, his criminal record may close many opportunities to him in the future. He may be turned down by a college or professional school. He may be turned down for a job. He may be turned down for a business for professional license. He may not even be able to travel to a foreign country. All because he has a criminal record. A record for the criminal act of shoplifting may haunt the shoplifter for the rest of his life—even if the item stolen was only a ten cent candybar.

Shoplifting is a crime.

The penalty for shoplifting varies, but all states regard shoplifting as a criminal act. Conviction of shoplifting can be punishable by 6 months to 7 years in prison or fines of $500.00 to $2000.00, or both a fine and prison term. When the shoplifter commits his crime, he is stealing. He is robbing the store. His family. His friends. The entire community. And the shoplifter is robbing himself.

Sen. Farabee Introduces Juvenile Delinquent Bill

Austin—State Senator Ray Farabee introduced legislation this week to close loop-holes which exist in current laws dealing with juvenile delinquents.

Noting that there has been over a 10 percent rise in juvenile crime in Texas Farabee said, "Juvenile delinquents must know that they are not exempt from the laws of society. Young people must be aware that they too have a responsibility to abide by the law."

It is my feeling that we should do everything possible to rehabilitate juvenile offenders, but that doesn't mean letting them go because of legal technicalities."

One section of the bill makes revisions which clarify the jurisdiction of the juvenile court.

Other parts are designed to cut down on the number of runaways and truants.

Another important section would permit the juvenile court, after giving notice and holding a hearing, to enjoin any person from contact with a child if that person is found to be contributing to the child's delinquency.

One amendment contained in the bill would allow detention hearings to be held in the county where the child is being detained even if the juvenile case is filed in another county. This amendment would also make it clear that if there are no certified places of detention within the county that the child may be held in a certified place of detention in another county.

The legislation also contains provisions to protect the rights of the child. It calls for inspection of juvenile detention facilities by the juvenile judge in addition to the juvenile board and provides that the Juvenile Court may authorize the fingerprinting of a child. It also addresses the unclear issue of jury verdicts in juvenile cases by requiring a unanimous verdict.

All of the provisions of this bill are endorsed by the Board of Directors of the State Bar of Texas.

PCA Projects Lowering Interest Rates for 1975

Qualified farmers and ranchers should be able to borrow the production money they need for 1975 and at gradually declining interest costs, J. R. Gleaton, Rolling Plains Production Credit Association president, said today.

Gleaton said projections are that the gradual decline in interest costs will continue. "By June PCA farmers and ranchers should be paying from 1 to 1½ percent less for their borrowed money."

The PCA officer said that his organization's method of obtaining money ensures an adequate supply for his stockholders in 1975. Funds for the Association are obtained through the public sale of bonds.

"Our main concern," Gleaton stated, "is that our members will not be able to tighten their belts enough to meet the increased production costs that we know are here to stay—at least for awhile. Necessities are about all our members can afford now. 'Needs' and 'wants' are going to have to wait for better times."

Rolling Plains PCA loaned $53 million in 1974. This figure represents an average loan size of almost $60,000 to 950 members.

Rolling Plains PCA provides loan funds for farmers and ranchers in Briscoe, Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Dickens, Donley, Foard, Hall, Hardeman, Haskell, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Motley, Shackelford and Stonewall Counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Williams are the parents of a son, Guy Plemons, 7 lbs. 6 oz., born Feb. 11, at 9:37 a.m. in the Hamlin Memorial Hospital.

NEWS AND VIEWS...

And What Have You

By BOB CRAIG

Ran across the following bit of satire in the Breckenridge American that seems worth repeating. The article was written by Don McElreath of Service, Inc. in Casper, Wyo. and first appeared as a letter to the editor in the Western Oil Reporter.

Because of its length it is being set in small type, but hope that you will find it worth your time to read.

THE BUFFALO CRISIS

Many years ago there was a western town called Wildcat, Wyoming. This was a very prosperous town and everyone had all they needed. A tribe of Indians lived on the outskirts of town who were buffalo hunters and they kept the town supplied with meat.

The town's people always had plenty of meat to eat although they did not have much in storage. The town also got meat from other buffalo hunters who brought in buffalo from far away lands.

This made it very hard on the local tribe, as they only received $2 per buffalo and with the imported meat there was not much demand for local hunts. The town's people did not care too much for the Indians anyway and didn't want them coming into their town.

The town also had a Government agency, that was supposed to help the townspeople and the Indians. But it seemed the agency was always against the Indians. Although some leaders in the agency were good to the Indians, like "Buffalo Hansen," others like "Trader Jackson" sought to destroy the local tribe.

Then it happened! The far-away buffalo hunters got mad at the town and would not deliver any more buffalo meat to them. Panic hit the town as there was very little meat in storage and everyone would have to be rationed. The local tribe was at a loss, as they had no way to meet this sudden demand. The Indians also were rationed and had to wait in long lines and sometimes, after hours of waiting, find out they had run out of meat.

Most town people were not informed on what went on in this busy town and blamed the local Indian tribe for the shortage. (Some were so stupid they said the local tribe had purposely made unsuccessful hunts and had stampeded the buffalo over cliffs to create the shortage.)

The Agency then came to the Indians and said, "We must have more Buffalo Per Day." (now known as BPD) "We must make our town independent, so we will not have to rely on far-away buffalo hunters anymore."

The Indians agreed. (As this is what they had tried to do all along.) But they had many problems. The bows and arrows were old and had been stacked in a teepee for years. They would have to be repaired, if arrowheads and twine could be obtained. New ones were ordered, but the bow and arrow makers were running 2 years in back orders. Inexperienced braves would have to be recruited as many of the old braves had left when the buffalo hunts were slow and wages were so low—never to return. The buffalo also were not as plentiful as before and the hunters would have to travel longer distances, into deeper canyons, at more expense. The bows and arrows would cost more money and they would have to pay higher wages to the braves. The buffalo would have to be raised to $10 each to cover the expense of the hunt. Some of the town's people cried, "Excessive Profits." Others said let's use canned food—but cans were not to be invented for another 25 years. The buffalo hunts were carried on at a fast pace. The Indians worked very hard.

Many moon before the crisis, the Agency had set it up so that the Tribe had to give them part of their buffalo earnings each year. But the tribe returned from many, many hunts without even a smell of a buffalo. The agency would then return a small amount of their earnings so they could invest it in other buffalo hunts. This was called a "Depletion Allowance." Most of this had already been taken away from the tribe. This was another reason the tribe had slowed investments in the hunts.

Although the Indians worked hard, the townspeople still complained. They said the hunters horses messed up their land and smelled up the air, even though most of them had never been to the hunting grounds. They complained that the wagons that hauled the buffalo meat and the hunting gear should not be allowed on the main road, even though the tribe paid the town for road permits and road use tax.

Some of the Indians started hunting from the water in canoes. This was a great expense to the tribe but they felt this might increase the supply of buffalo. The town people cried that the Indians would run the rivers. Although the tribe took every precaution, one buffalo did fall into the

New Migrant Student Program Launched Here for 4-Year Olds

New equipment continues to arrive for the newly-initiated four-year-old migrant student program. Six students are enrolled in the class which offers the children of migratory agricultural workers an opportunity to become acquainted with educational processes.

Just this week a large low formica table with child size brightly colored molded plastic chairs were added to the furnishings of the large room in the northwest corner of the elementary building.

A theme is used to present the subject matter. Last week the children studied colors and body parts. This week's theme is animals. A live rabbit and a large number of toy animals are included in the presentation of the theme.

Mrs. Randell (Roseann) Graham of Stamford, a recent graduate of Abilene Christian College, is the supervising teacher. Mrs. Eddie (Mary Jo) Marentes is assisting teacher.

The children enrolled are Tonya Corlee, Amy Marentes, Felix Ledesma, Jessie Gonzales, Diana Lozano and Noe Arce.

Children must be four years of age by Sept. 1, 1974. A migratory child is a child who has moved with his family from one school district to another during the past year in order that a family member might secure employment in agriculture or in related food processing activities.

The two major emphases of the four-year-old program are a bilingual approach to the development of English as a second language and a bicultural approach whereby students will be able to operate successfully in two cultures.

Early classes are taught in Spanish and English and is incorporated into the program as the children progress. Toward the end of the term, Mrs. Graham said that more English would be used.

The program, which was initiated with the assistance of Region XIV Education Service Center, was launched on the belief of educators that the early years of life are profoundly important in the development and improvement of a child's intellectual potential. Also, many migrant children lack certain basic experiences which would allow them to receive maximum benefit from traditional classroom settings.

The curriculum used for the program begins at a low order of difficulty and proceeds systematically to higher levels.

Among the goals are to strengthen the child's concept of himself as a worthwhile human being, develop sensory-perceptual skills and language skills and develop thinking and reasoning.

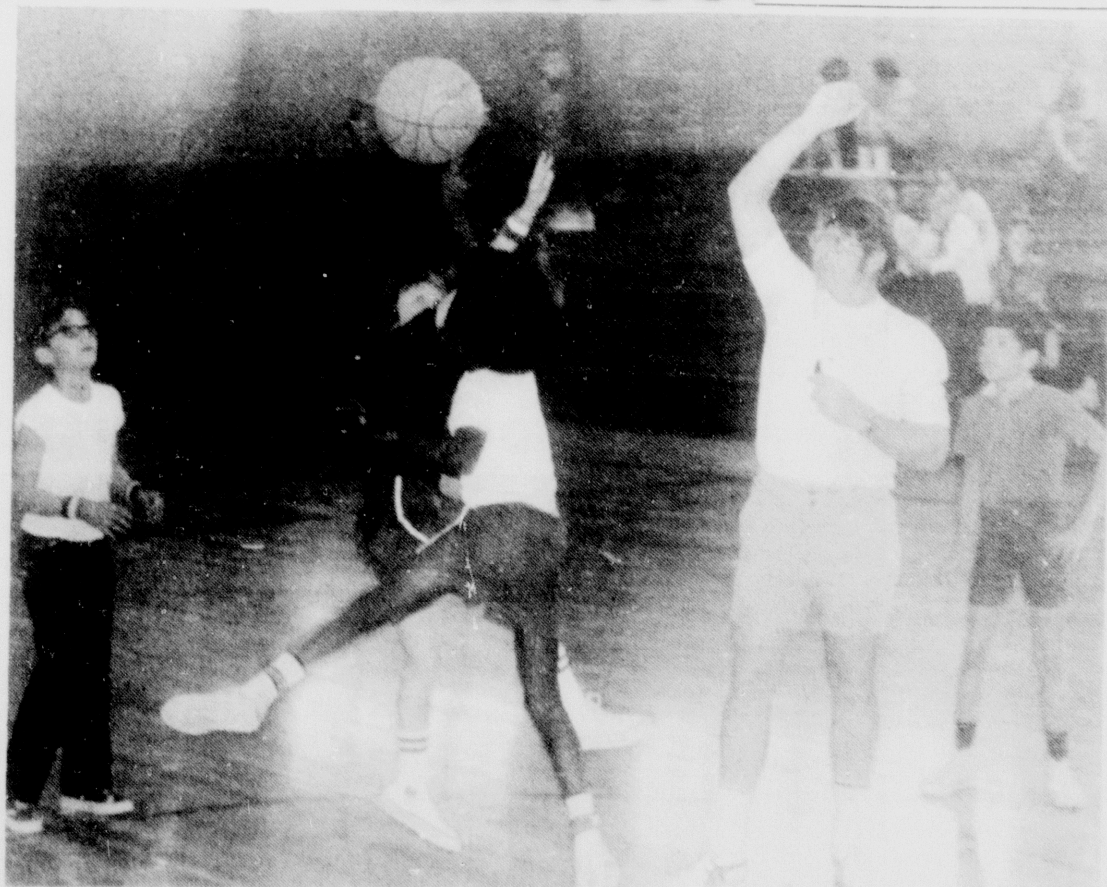

The students are in class from 8:30 to 2:30. Included in their schedule are rest periods, snacks and recess periods.

Each teacher takes three students at a time and teaches two lessons, giving each child a total of four lessons daily. They also spend time in small groups or individually in the learning centers at various times.

Coahoma Downs Locals For District Honors

Coahoma won the District 6-AA girls title and took a commanding lead in the boys race here Friday evening with victories over Hamlin. The Coahoma girls downed the local girls, 69-50, to close out the district race undefeated.

The Coahoma boys

remained undefeated in the second round of play with a 67-58 victory over the Pipers and are expected to finish out this half of district play undefeated. They tied Anson for the first round, but will win the title out-right and advance into the Bi-District playoffs with a second half win.

With one game left on their schedule, the Pipers could post a 5-1 record in the second round of play with a victory over Colorado City Friday night. They were 3-3 in the first round. Anson, while owning a share of the first round, dropped games to Hamlin, Coahoma and Colorado City in the second round of play.

The game here Friday evening was the season final for the local girls as the district girls race was completed one week earlier than the boys. The girls were 5-1 in both rounds with losses only to Coahoma in each half.

After dropping behind the Coahoma Bulldogs, 28-12, in the first quarter, the Pipers staged a second quarter rally to pull within three points at half time, 38-35. But they failed to keep their rally alive in the second half and dropped behind five points at the end of the third quarter and were out-scored by four points in the final period to lose, 67-58.

Johnny Jones was high for the Pipers with 20 points, he was followed by William Brown with 16, Delbert Thompson with 9, Gerald Rodgers with 8 and Tracy Rowland with 5. Jody Bennett was high for Coahoma with 21.

After trailing 36-10 at half-time, the Hamlin girls put on a strong rally early in the third period, outscoring Coahoma, 24-16, but could not over come the big Coahoma lead and lost, 69-50.

Kathy Hooper was high for the local girls with 26 points, she was followed by Kimi Mehaffey with 13, Elberta Cork with 10 and Elizabeth Hooper with 1. Miss Hulme was high for Coahoma with 31.

Agent Gives Tips—

Gardening Time Again

It won't be long until homeowners in Jones County will begin putting in spring gardens in their backyards or wherever they can find space. To have a successful home garden, a number of important factors enter into the picture, reports Kirby Clayton, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

First of all, select a site that is well drained and has fertile soil. Of course, many homeowners have little choice regarding the location of their garden. If possible, the site should receive plenty of sunlight although most leafy crops can be grown in areas receiving partial shade.

Selecting of the proper vegetable variety is a key item to a successful garden, adds Clayton. Many home gardeners start off by planting varieties not adapted to this area. The county Extension office has a list of recommended varieties for Jones County. Proper soil preparation is another important key for a good garden. A tight, heavy clay soil can be improved by adding from one to two inches of sand and two to three inches of organic matter. Till these items into the garden area prior to planting.

In absence of a soil test, apply a complete fertilizer such as 10-10-10 at the rate of two to three pounds per hundred square feet of garden area. Work the fertilizer into the soil and then form the beds for planting.

Use transplants (young seedling plants) whenever possible to get the crop off to a head start, advises Clayton. Once the crops are up, water sufficiently and regularly so that the water penetrates the soil to a depth of at least six inches. Light sandy soils may require more frequent watering. Clayton suggests watering in the morning or at least not later than mid-afternoon so that plants can dry out before night. This will help prevent many foliage diseases.

Weeds are a problem in most gardens and a long handled hoe is still the best means of controlling them, notes Clayton. However, adding a mulch of straw, leaves, grass, bark, gin trash, sawdust, peatmoss or other organic material around the growing plants will help reduce weeds and will also conserve moisture.

Keep a close check on crops once they begin to approach maturity. Harvest vegetables only at full maturity because that is when they have their best flavor and nutritional content.

Growing your own vegetables can be a lot of fun and it helps reduce the grocery bill, adds Clayton.

EAT YOURSELF SLIM

Over-refined foods lack needed nutrients

By SHIRLEY BRIGHT BOODY,
Registered Dietitian
Copley News Service

Much has been written and spoken about the over-refined American foods, but little has been done to change eating habits to reduce consumption of these foods.

It may be that eventually the ever-increasing incidence of intestinal tract problems will alert doctors and their patients to the dangers of over-refinement of foods in our diets.

Many people suffer from the very disturbing and painful problem of diverticulitis—inflamed pockets in the intestines.

A diet lacking adequate fiber, over a long period of time, will not supply the needed roughage to keep the digestive tract healthy.

There are no real nutritional guidelines, at this time, to define the amount of fiber that is needed to maintain health, however, it is a well documented fact that societies that consume quite large amounts of fibrous foods have almost no problems with constipation, diverticulitis, appendicitis or cancer of the colon.

As our food supply becomes more and more refined, more fats and sugars are added, resulting in an increase in calories.

The loss of fiber in the diet also produces a diluting of certain highly important trace elements and the loss of many needed vitamins.

The more processed our foods become the more sodium we get. We also tend to get less potassium with over-refined foods.

The loss of silicone, nickel, chromium, selenium and zinc also occurs. These trace minerals are needed in only tiny amounts, but nonetheless are required for an adequate diet.

It is not surprising that we are seeing more and more people with the combined problems of overweight and diverticulitis. The number of these sufferers is increasing at an alarming rate.

A huge excess of unnecessary calories are added to the diet by the intake of sugar, fat and white flour. They do have some of the needed vitamins and minerals, but in their highly refined state most of these valuable nutrients are lost.

As much as 34 per cent of the calories in the average diet are contributed by sugar and fat. In some cases 18 per cent of the calories is supplied by white flour.

Such items as pies, cakes, doughnuts and sweet rolls make up a large part of many people's diets and these people often suffer from obesity and intestinal tract problems.

When diverticulae become infected or inflamed it is called diverticulitis, a painful condition.

Traditionally, the dietary treatment for this problem has been the omission of skins, strings and seeds of fruits and vegetables. These tend to get caught in the diverticulae and cause trouble.

By including more roughage in the diet with such foods as unpeeled fruits and vegetables, whole grain breads and cereals, a great amount of intestinal problems can be prevented. With such a diet you can very often avoid the formation of diverticulae.

People who regularly rely on "liquid meals" instead of eating properly will eventually find themselves with intestinal problems. Most of these situations which cause considerable discomfort, if not acute pain, can be avoided by a good diet high in roughage.

Dear Shirley:

We have relatives visiting us from out of state and we are eating out frequently. I have gained five pounds since they have been here. How can I avoid gaining more?

Mrs. I. B. C.

Dear Mrs. I. B. C.:

Eating regularly in restaurants without putting on weight takes a little more study of the menu and a little more restraint. Learn to select wisely and refrain from eating everything served you. Avoid sauces, breadings on chops, fish and chicken, rolls and butter and desserts. Request sliced tomatoes to replace potatoes and choose other vegetables lower in carbohydrates.

water. The Indian who had shot the buffalo cleaned up the mess by himself and paid all the expenses while the townspeople stood on the bank and complained. The Indian was required to take his canoe and leave town. All the buffalo that were taken from water hunting has been forgotten, but the "Buffalo Splash Story" is still talked about today.

The Agency formed a committee and sent them to the Indian village. They told the tribe that this group would make their hunting safer. They would put saddles on the horses, tied the braves to them, put safety tips over arrow heads and hard-toed moccasins to wear. (All at the expense of the Indian tribe.)

The Indians protested that this would greatly hamper the buffalo hunt and the tribe had always had safety regulations. Why they even had their own safety council and safety braves that checked every hunting party. But the Indian's argument fell on deaf ears and the new group stayed in command. The group was formed by townspeople consisting of storekeepers, bartenders, blacksmiths, etc., none of whom had ever been near a buffalo hunt. The new group was called "Safety & Health for Indian Tribes." (Acronym deleted—editor.)

Although the hunts became more and more expensive, it looked as if the tribe might find enough buffalo for everyone to eat and maybe they could store some for everyone to eat and maybe they could store some for the long cold winters. Then an evil spirit came upon the tribe. It was a leader from the Agency, good old "Trader Jackson." He said the depletion allowance should be taken away from the tribe and the price should be rolled back to $2 per buffalo. The Agency and the townspeople agreed and it was done.

The beaten Indian tribe put away their bows and arrows and returned to the reservation. Never to hunt buffalo again. The winter was bad and all the townspeople starved to death. The town of Wildcat perished.

HOUSEMOVING

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Coleman Adv. Ser.

This house was moved to make way for a new super freeway. A city in progress creates many changes. The owners, no doubt, hated to change their location, and dreaded pulling up life-long roots. St. Paul would help in situations like these when he said, "For I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." Phillippians 4:11. The Lord will help us in new situations and new surroundings. He has promised to be with us in all things.

After getting settled, it is good to find a church home with people of like faith. No new neighborhood seems lonely if you can be with people who have the love of God in their hearts.

"Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together," (Hebrews 10:25a) is a wise saying. We invite you to attend the church in your community this week.

NEINDA PHILOSOPHER—

J. A. Claims San Francisco Trustees Trying to Bring On Real Depression

Editor's note: The Neinda Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Route One seems shocked over a piece of news he saw on television.

Dear editor:

I was watching the evening news on TV the other night, well, they call it the evening news but actually it's just part of the evening news; it's the news that happened close to where the network had a camera that day, or news that didn't play out before a camera crew could get there; anyway the part of the news that interested me that night was a report that the San Francisco school board had decided to discontinue all junior high and senior high school sports.

That's right, football, basketball, baseball, track, marbles—everything would be discontinued to save money.

Now what the San Francisco school board does is none of my business, I've got my hands full out here on this Johnson grass farm, but, like the economic advisors who convinced President Ford

three months ago that the way to solve the country's problems was to save and stop spending, only to reverse themselves and say no, the way to do it is for everybody to spend more and create jobs, I wonder if those school trustees were looking far enough down the road?

I mean, without junior high football, how can you develop any players for a senior high team? Without a senior high team, how can you have any college teams? And without any college teams, where would professional teams get any players? The same goes for baseball, basketball, tennis, golf, swimming, etc.

Without thinking, the San Francisco school board is about to undermine the very foundations of society.

I have a notion that by the time this gets into print the howl of protest beginning with the cheer leaders in San Francisco, not to mention the coaches (how many coaches would be satisfied with a teacher's salary?) and spreading like wildfire across the nation will have convinced the board of trustees they didn't realize the magnitude of their decision.

You throw thousands of coaches out of work, ruin the business of helmet makers, shoulder pad people, uniform makers, etc., not to mention destroying half of television's revenue in the fall and winter, and you've just given the recession one more shove toward a depression.

Some people say Congress isn't responsive enough to the will of the people but you don't see Congress pulling stunt like that. It hasn't got time. Too busy investigating things.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

MANY UNDERINSURED—

Insurance Industry Urges Larger Deductibles to Offset High Rates

Austin—Insurance companies throughout the state today warned property owners that due to skyrocketing inflation almost all citizens are underinsured.

F. Darby Hammond, president of Southwestern Insurance Information Service here, pointed out, for example, that the cost of housing construction has jumped about 70 percent since 1967.

A home that cost $20,000 in 1967 now sells for $34,000. "Homeowners who have not increased their insurance even in the past year are underinsured and would face drastic losses if an accident occurs," he said.

The insurance industry is proposing a solution to the problem which will not cost homeowners much increase in premiums, if any. "Homeowners should increase the amount of their insurance to actual value at today's prices," Hammond said, "and they can do this without costing them a lot of money. Some might even see a reduction in premiums. They should consider raising the amount of the deductible on their insurance policies," he said.

Many homeowners carry $50 or $100 deductible on their homeowner insurance. In other words, the homeowner agrees to pay the first $50 or $100 of a loss. This makes sense, Hammond explained, because insurance is meant to protect against large losses which would wreck a budget or even wipe someone out financially. A $50 or $100 repair bill is not likely to do this, he added.

On the other hand, almost one-third of all homeowner losses are under $100. Insurance companies must spend the same amount of money investigating, appraising, and doing paper work to pay small claims as they do to pay large ones. Therefore, Hammond explains, if the homeowner pays for small losses and lets the insurance companies cover large ones, it cuts down on company expenses of handling small claims, thus saving the homeowner money. He can buy a $250 or $500 deductible policy, for instance, much cheaper. Increasing the homeowners deductible from $100 to $250, for example, saves the homeowner about 10 percent on premiums. Raising the deductible from $100 to $500 would save up to 20 percent.

"With this kind of saving," Hammond pointed out, "the homeowner can increase his insurance to cover the actual value of his home, furnishings, and personal belongings."

"To put it another way," he said, "the homeowner can buy more insurance for less money and that's something today when everything we buy seems to go up every day."

To illustrate his point, Hammond produced some figures that may startle property owners. For instance, maintenance and repairs for houses jumped 74 percent from 1967 to 1974.

Deadline for FFA Citrus Fruit Nears

Friday, Feb. 21, is the deadline for ordering citrus fruit from the Hamlin Future Farmers of America Chapter.

Orders for oranges and grapefruit will be delivered during the week of Mar. 5. The fruit is packed 40 pounds to each box for $6.50. The one-half boxes are $3.50. The fruit is sold as oranges, grapefruit, or mixed half and half.

All FFA members are selling the fruit. Anyone who has not been contacted and would like to order some fruit should call chapter advisors Milburn Wink or Gary Finley.

This includes increases of 92 percent for repainting living and dining rooms, 100 percent for reshingling roofs, 72 percent for residing houses, and 85 percent for domestic services.

"This idea of increasing insurance coverage and deductible amounts so that you have more insurance for less money also applies to automobiles," Hammond said. "We need insurance when we have heavy losses, but if we are willing to pay for minor repairs with a higher deductible we can buy more insurance for the same money." A major accident could cost a car owner a lot of money.

For instance, auto repairs and maintenance have risen 57 percent since 1967. Medical care items and hospital services have soared 102 percent for semi-private rooms and doctor's fees have increased 52 percent. The cost of funeral services have jumped 35 percent.

"Inflation means our homes and cars are worth more today than ever before," Hammond said, "and we need to protect that value with increased insurance. We can do it with little or no increase in premiums if we will increase the deductible."

Reddy's helpful tips for your Electric Range

BAKING. Plan your oven meals. A complete meal can be cooked in the oven as economically as one food item. Get foods into the oven as soon as it's preheated - or don't preheat at all.

BOILING. When cooking vegetables, use a small amount of water. It takes less time to bring them to a boil. As soon as water reaches the boiling point, you can cut the setting back. When boiling water for coffee or tea, heat only as much as you need. Remember, too, that water comes to a boil quicker in a covered pan.

COOK AND FREEZE. Prepare double recipes for meals like spaghetti sauce, soups, and stews that take a long time to cook. Then freeze half for future use.

SHOPLIFTING MEANS...

YOU'RE BEING ROBBED!

Everyone pays for shoplifting. Even the shoplifter.

More than three billion dollars worth of merchandise is shoplifted each year from retail stores throughout the nation. To combat this staggering loss, millions of dollars are being spent by merchants for security guards, store detectives and electronic security systems. Police and court costs increase. To make up for the total shoplifting loss and security expense, we all pay higher prices. Increased court and police costs come out of our taxes.

The shoplifter is really robbing himself.

When a shoplifter makes a legitimate purchase, he pays the higher prices along with the rest of us. And his taxes help to support the higher police and court costs, too. But the shoplifter steals from himself in much more important ways. Advanced security systems mean more arrests and that means increased chances that the shoplifter will be caught. Here's where the shoplifter is really robbing from himself. He can go to jail. He may pay a large fine and court costs. His conviction for the crime of shoplifting may become a permanent criminal record for the rest of his life. Since the average shoplifter is 14 to 18 years old, his criminal record may close many opportunities to him in the future. He may be turned down by a college or professional school. He may be turned down for a job. He may be turned down for a business for professional license. He may not even be able to travel to a foreign country. All because he has a criminal record. A record for the criminal act of shoplifting may haunt the shoplifter for the rest of his life—even if the item stolen was only a ten cent candybar.

Shoplifting is a crime.

The penalty for shoplifting varies, but all states regard shoplifting as a criminal act. Conviction of shoplifting can be punishable by 6 months to 7 years in prison or fines of $500.00 to $2000.00, or both a fine and prison term. When the shoplifter commits his crime, he is stealing. He is robbing the store. His family. His friends. The entire community. And the shoplifter is robbing himself.

Sen. Farabee Introduces Juvenile Delinquent Bill

Autin—State Senator Ray Farabee introduced legislation this week to close loop-holes which exist in current laws dealing with juvenile delinquents.

Noting that there has been over a 10 percent rise in juvenile crime in Texas Farabee said, "Juvenile delinquents must know that they are not exempt from the laws of society. Young people must be aware that they too have a responsibility to abide by the law."

It is my feeling that we should do everything possible to rehabilitate juvenile offenders, but that doesn't mean letting them go because of legal technicalities."

One section of the bill makes revisions which clarify the jurisdiction of the juvenile court.

Other parts are designed to cut down on the number of runaways and truants.

Another important section would permit the juvenile court, after giving notice and holding a hearing, to enjoin any person from contact with a child if that person is found to be contributing to the child's delinquency.

One amendment contained in the bill would allow detention hearings to be held in the county where the child is being detained even if the juvenile case is filed in another county. This amendment would also make it clear that if there are no certified places of detention within the county that the child may be held in a certified place of detention in another county.

The legislation also contains provisions to protect the rights of the child. It calls for inspection of juvenile detention facilities by the juvenile judge in addition to the juvenile board and provides that the Juvenile Court may authorize the fingerprinting of a child. It also addresses the unclear issue of jury verdicts in juvenile cases by requiring a unanimous verdict.

All of the provisions of this bill are endorsed by the Board of Directors of the State Bar of Texas.

PCA Projects Lowering Interest Rates for 1975

Qualified farmers and ranchers should be able to borrow the production money they need for 1975 and at gradually declining interest costs, J. R. Gleaton, Rolling Plains Production Credit Association president, said today.

Gleaton said projections are that the gradual decline in interest costs will continue. "By June PCA farmers and ranchers should be paying from 1 to 1½ percent less for their borrowed money."

The PCA officer said that his organization's method of obtaining money ensures an adequate supply for his stockholders in 1975. Funds for the Association are obtained through the public sale of bonds.

"Our main concern," Gleaton stated, "is that our members will not be able to tighten their belts enough to meet the increased production costs that we know are here to stay—at least for awhile. Necessities are about all our members can afford now. 'Needs' and 'wants' are going to have to wait for better times."

Rolling Plains PCA loaned $53 million in 1974. This figure represents an average loan size of almost $60,000 to 950 members.

Rolling Plains PCA provides loan funds for farmers and ranchers in Briscoe, Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Dickens, Donley, Foard, Hall, Hardeman, Haskell, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Motley, Shackelford and Stonewall Counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Williams are the parents of a son, Guy Plemons, 7 lbs. 6 oz., born Feb. 11, at 9:37 a.m. in the Hamlin Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Newberry, Mollie and Todd of Wolforth visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Newberry, over the weekend.
